The Story of Life (Frances Lincoln, £12.99) by Catherine Barr, Steve Williams and Amy Husband is a simple, well-illustrated account of evolution. "The book touches on very complex subjects, like the development of life from the first cells and man's evolution, but does so in a way that makes it understandable for those coming to these concepts for the first time."

The story unfolds with the formation of the earth around four thousand million years ago. Life first emerged a hundred million years later, and it took another fifteen million years for more complex life-forms to appear. Periods of relative calm were punctuated by five major extinctions, with innumerable minor jolts along the way.

The story of my life (the story of, the story of) Written on these walls are the colors that I can't change. Leave my heart open but it stays right here in its cage. I know that in the morning now I'll see us in the light upon a hill. Although I am broken, my heart is untamed, still. And I'll be gone, gone tonight.

The ceremony, he wrote, had been 'the most beautiful, the most touching, and the most impressive that in all its long, eventful story this island has ever seen'. Hyperbole was not the common stock in trade of the paper in 1920, but seemed merited for the Unknown Warrior, laid to rest in Westminster Abbey on Armistice Day that year.
